Tidbits of teaching mathematics in Hostos Community College during COVID -19

This will be a collaborative presentation. We know that many of our faculties are doing many innovative things in their online teaching during this unprecedented situation. It will be a good idea if some of us can share some of these innovative teaching strategies with the whole department so that we can all benefit from this. To this end, some of us already agreed to share some information in the seminar.

Prof. Baker: Break-out groups and creating a shared learning environment

Prof. Wolf: TBA

Prof. Prince: “Remind” a direct text message communication between instructor and students without compromising the phone numbers.
